About Evan Smith

“I always looked up to police officers. They were always, and continue to be today, the best reflection of the community they serve.”

Evan Smith is a law enforcement officer working in the Motorcycle Enforcement Team for the Aurora Police Department. With over 15 years of experience in law enforcement, including as an instructor, Officer Smith brings experience and expertise to serving his community.

Why did you become a police officer?

Being a police officer, there are many different career paths that I could be a part of, from narcotics to SRO, from motorcycle enforcement to aviation units in some departments. These different career paths drew me to being a police officer from a very young age. I also always looked up to police officers. They were always, and continue to be today, the best reflection of the community they serve.

Why is being highly professional so important?

Being a professional police officer requires a variety of different skills for a variety of different circumstances. We may have to reason with someone in crisis letting them know they're safe, or we may be required to use force in a situation to protect ourselves or others. Knowing how to be professional in these extremely different situations and every situation in between not only shows the talented people who are officers, it helps inspire confidence in the police department with the community we serve.

What do you want the Aurora Public to know about the department they might not otherwise know?

We need the support of the community to be successful. Making Aurora safer is impossible without community members helping us to reduce crime.

CELEBRATING HIGHLY PROFESSIONAL POLICE OFFICERS

About Joshua Hall

“I have always wanted to serve my community and protect those who could not protect themselves.”

Joshua Hall is a Master Deputy with the Richland County Sheriff’s Department working in the Traffic Safety Unit with over 8 years of experience. A veteran himself, Master Deputy Hall brings his passion for service to his role in law enforcement.

Why did you become a police officer?

Two things inspired me to go into law enforcement. First, my father had a lot to do with it. Seeing him get up in the morning and put on his uniform, I knew he was going to do great things. Second, I have always wanted to serve my community and protect those who could not protect themselves or are afraid to protect themselves.

Why is being highly professional so important?

Being professional could bridge the gap between a police officer and their community. As an officer, if you are being rude and unprofessional you may end up doing more damage and losing that connection with your community. Being professional is not just for law enforcement. It applies to anything that you do in life and I believe it sets you apart from your peers.

What is one thing you want the community members of Richland County to know about your professionalism?

I want the community to know that I will be fair, impartial, and professional when they encounter me.
